

Session 7: Financing inclusive social protection

Khodr Fakhri

Khodr Fakhri received a Bachelor of Law from the Lebanese University, a Master of Laws and a Doctorate of Juridical Science from Northwestern University School of Law. Dr. Fakhri is the Director of Legal Studies at the Lebanese American University. His research includes American/Lebanese Business/Corporate Law, International/Domestic Arbitration, Banking Law and Business Ethics. He has a number of publications in several. Dr. Fakhri is a practicing lawyer for over 25 years with deep experience in litigation, international arbitration and legal advising. Dr. Fakhri has served as an arbitrator in numerous domestic and international cases, and he is registered as an arbitrator in Dubai and Oman International Arbitration Centers.

Laila Bint Ahmad Al Najjar

Laila Bint Ahmad Al Najjar is the Minister of Social Development of Oman. Prior to that, she was an Adviser to the Minister of Education for educational programmes and was assigned as Director General of the General Directorate for Scouts and Guides. She is the first Omani woman to serve as Director General of an educational governorate Oman and the first Omani woman to participate in the leadership training course of the National Defense College. She holds a doctorate in educational management from the University of Tunis.

Wafaa Al Kilani

Wafaa Al-Kilani has been serving as the Minister of Social Affairs in Libya's Government of National Unity since March 2021. With a background in pharmacy and extensive experience in medical services, training, and human development, Al-Kilani has spearheaded major reforms in social protection and the rights of vulnerable populations. Her leadership has resulted in the launch of Libya's National Social Protection Strategy and the creation of the Unified Social Registry. She has expanded disability rights policies, improved family welfare benefits, and introduced the country's first official sign language dictionary. Al-Kilani chairs several national and regional bodies, including the National Committee for Social Protection Strategy Development, the National Migration Committee, and serves as President of the Arab Family Organization in 2024.

Ragda Sehade

Ragda Sehade is an academic researcher holding a PhD in Islamic Studies, with a specialization in social thought, legal, and constitutional studies, with extensive experience spanning over 25 years in academic research and education. She has made significant and impactful contributions to international and local conferences and workshops focused on intellectual, social, legal, and constitutional issues.

A civil society activist, she has held several administrative positions in civil society organizations and institutions concerned with law, women's issues, and the constitution. She has also worked in various academic and administrative positions, supervised several doctoral and master's theses in the social sciences, and published around 12 books and a large number of peer-reviewed research papers. She is currently the Assistant to the Minister of Social Affairs and Labor in the Syrian Arab Republic.